To some extent, SQL injection is a HTML element and one of its most well known forms is the SQL Injection Attack. This attack is generally very powerful. Many web applications, which use SQL to query data, are vulnerable. This is because these applications are configured to accept user-provided input and make queries based on it. A successful SQL injection attack is one that is capable of reading sensitive data, which includes email, credit card details, and passwords from your database. It is important for a pen tester to have tools to pry open the locks. We will discuss about these in the next section. SQL injection vulnerability is a very common vulnerability in web applications. It is used by hackers to obtain sensitive information and is generally very powerful. Many web applications, which use SQL to query data, are vulnerable to SQL injection attacks. SQL injection attack is a type of web application vulnerability that exists when improper processing of input data is permitted. The attacker is able to trick an application into disclosing confidential data. Query string is the part of the URL passed to the server where the data is obtained. In the case of SQL injection attacks, the hackers pass SQL statements as data to the application. The only way to check if the code is prone to SQL Injection attacks is to test the code. If there is no need to query the database, then it should be impossible for the hacker to write malicious code. Most of the SQL applications are generally susceptible to SQL injection attacks. This is because the default configuration of the SQL programs are vulnerable. The hacker doesn't need to be a hacker or have understanding of programming to be able to carry out SQL injections. The only problem is to write the code and successfully inject the code at the right place.

The following is a bit abstract (maybe a bit too abstract) but I think you'll get the basic idea of what I meant: Instead of making tools to test for SQL Injection vulnerabilities, make the application invulnerable to SQL Injections. Though there is a sort of chicken and the egg problem here, since you need to test your application for SQL Injections to prove it is invulnerable, but that's not the point I wanted to make. sqlmap Did somebody say SQL injection Well hello, sqlmap. This incredibly effective SQL injection tool is open-source and automates the process of detecting and exploiting SQL injection flaws and taking over of database servers, just like its website says. Sqlmap supports all the usual targets, including MySQL, Oracle, PostgreSQL, Microsoft SQL Server, Microsoft Access, IBM DB2, SQLite, Firebird, Sybase, SAP MaxDB, Informix, HSQLDB and H2. Old-timers used to have to craft their SQL injection with a hot needle to their hard drive.

These days sqlmap will take the squinty-eyed work out of your pen testing gig.
